AN APPEAL MADE TO THE FARMERS

AGRICULTURE OF UTAH VALUED AT ABOUT $200,000,000.

Many Vital Questions That Are to Be Considered At the Coming Roundup—Dr. E. G. Peterson Cites Numerous Subjects That Ought to Have Attention From Agriculturists.

Correspondence The Sun.

LOGAN, Nov. 29.—In an appeal to the farmers of Utah in the interest of the roundup conducted annually by the agricultural college of Utah, Dr. E. G. Peterson, director of the extension division of the institution, calls attention that the farming industries of the state are worth two hundred million dollars.

"It is not true that in a two hundred million-dollar business it is vitally necessary that the investors in an ultimate and subscription meet now, at least, each year in considering its big features," says Dr. Peterson in his call to the farmers to attend the meeting.

The roundup at Logan will be held this season January 24th to February 5th. Similar gatherings will be held at Monroe January 10th to 22d and Cedar City, February 21th to 29th.

Among the questions which the farmers will consider at the meeting are:

"What about fruit under our present conditions?"

"Can we double our irrigated area without using any more water?"

"From what depths can underground water be pumped profitably?"

"Are we living up to our possibilities as a producer of dairy products, milk, cheese and butter?"

"What can be sold profitably from Utah farms?"

"Is our Utah social life degenerating or can we still claim now and look forward in increasing perfection to the most perfect social scheme in the world?"

"Can Utah become a great beef and sheep fattening state, making such enormous profits in this business as Colorado and other states? Or can we only only range feed the beef and mutton, leaving the extra profits to others?"

"Why does one farmer make each year twenty-five hundred dollars after paying all expenses, keeping his family and paying interest on an investment of fifteen thousand dollars, while another farmer under the same conditions makes a hundred and fifty dollars?"

"What should a successful, progressive farmer pay in interest for money borrowed to improve his farm?"

"Why do we let Idaho ship a hundred cars of logs through our state to Los Angeles while Utah ships only fifty cars?"

LEON V. SHEARER MAKES NEW OZOKERITE COMBINE

The Wasatch Ozokerite company has been organized to take over the holdings of the American Ozokerite Mining company at Soldier Summit. The company is putting in a unit of a new mill and treatment plant which has been demonstrated as a success in the treatment of ozokerite ores, and will probably be marketing by January 15, 1916. The initial output will be about five hundred pounds of refined wax per day. The New York quotations for which are from forty to forty-five cents per pound. The capacity of the unit being installed is twelve hundred pounds of wax daily. The company is capitalized at one hundred thousand shares of one dollar each. The officers of the company are: L. V. Shearer, president, director and treasurer, and James D. Gardner, vice president. Offices are in the Felt Building, Salt Lake City.

WELL KNOWN OLD TRAPPER FOUND DEAD IN MOUNTAINS

George J. Marsh, 42 years old, was found dead in the Duck Mountains about twenty-five miles north of Clio Wednesday of last week. He was staying at the sheep camp of Thomas H. Fay of Moab and was engaged in trapping. Tuesday morning he left the camp to set some traps. He did not return at dusk and the other men at the camp set out to look for him. In the dark his search was unsuccessful. Early the next morning he was found in the direction Marsh had taken the day before and soon came upon the old trapper's body lying face downward across a large wolf trap that he had been in the act of setting. Marsh was subject to heart trouble and was evidently stricken while at work. The body was taken to Clio by Thomas H. Fay and William Knappe. Efforts to locate the relatives of the old man were unavailing. The body was buried at Clio.

WHY YOU SHOULD USE CHAMBERLAIN'S COUGH REMEDY.

Because it has a splendid reputation won by its good works.
